

Community Programs

Therapeutic Services

Settling into a new country brings challenges that can make newcomers vulnerable to high stress, isolation, role shifts, and financial difficulties that can result in marital strife and high rates of parent-child conflict. Newcomers can sometimes bring with them trauma related to war, conflict and deprivation which often results in symptoms of PTSD, depression or anxiety, limiting their abilities to successfully integrate.

EMCN offers therapeutic services with a unique, holistic and community-oriented approach.

Edmonton Mennonite Centre for Newcomers

Newcomers Benefit From:

- Counselling, psychotherapy, crisis intervention, support, advocacy and social work services in a setting that is safe, welcoming and comfortable.
- Confidential counselling sessions.
- Interpretation services to assist communication during therapeutic sessions to help our clients express themselves better and feel more understood and supported in their mother tongue.
- Counselling offered to:
 - ⇒ Children and Youth
 - ⇒ Couples and Individuals
 - ⇒ Families
- Tools to personally build resilience, reduce social isolation, successfully bridge cultures and help newcomers to become their best selves.
- Techniques to better manage stress and anger.
- No limits on the number of sessions provided.
- Transportation support to make access to therapeutic sessions easier.

How The Program Works

To overcome barriers to accessing services, we offer therapeutic services in different Edmonton office locations and in schools and in homes (when feasible).

Interpretation services can also be made available.

We recognize that building resilience and the ability to overcome trauma and loss includes more than just traditional therapy. Our therapeutic services are embedded in the larger agency; therapists connect newcomers to social workers and other services to enhance their resilience and ability to function in their new environment.

Who Can Access These Services

- Anyone born outside of Canada is eligible
- Immigrants and refugees regardless of the length of stay in Canada (immigration status)
- Children under 18 years of age of parents born outside of Canada

Sessions are by appointment only.

No walk-ins.
