Who are we?

Newcomer Centre is a government-funded, registered Canadian charity. We help newcomers find work, learn English, get settled and thrive.

Newcomer Centre was established in 1981 under the direction of a board consisting of appointees from the First Mennonite Church to walk with newcomers in their settlement integration process.

Each year, we serve newcomers from more than 100 countries of origin. Our staff represent a diverse range of languages, faiths, and cultures. Many of us were newcomers who accessed these services ourselves or can relate to clients' experiences.

Enhanced Settlement Workers In Schools (ESWIS)

Newcomer families often enroll their children in school, leading to challenges like making new friends, learning English, and understanding the Alberta curriculum. Newcomer Centre helps by making schools welcoming with cultural brokering, counselling, and academic support and also facilitates communication between newcomer families, their communities, and schools.

Newcomer Centre works with school administrators and parents to determine needs on a student-by-student basis. We have established relationships with many schools in the Edmonton area, but we are always available to any school or parent who requires support. As the demand for services changes yearly, so does the list of schools in which our program operates.

Therapeutic & Counselling Services

Newcomers to a new country face challenges that can lead to high stress, isolation, role shifts, financial difficulties, marital problems, and parent-child conflict. They may also carry trauma from their past, leading to PTSD, depression, and anxiety, which can impede their integration. Newcomer Centre provides community-focused therapy and counselling to address these challenges.

Newcomer Centre's therapeutic services team members are:

- Highly-trained psychologists, licensed therapists and social workers
- Trauma-informed therapy practitioners who consider cultural perspectives, immigration processes, and gender expectations and expressions

How does the program work?

- To overcome barriers to accessing services, we offer therapeutic services in different Edmonton office locations, schools, and homes (when feasible).
- Interpretation services can also be made available.
- We recognize that building resilience and overcoming trauma and loss includes more than traditional therapy. Our therapeutic services are embedded in the larger agency; therapists connect newcomers to social workers and other services to enhance their resilience and ability to function in their new environment.
- NOTE: sessions are by appointment only. No walk-ins.

Fees and eligibility:

- There is no fee/cost for Newcomer Centre's therapeutic and counselling services.
- Immigrants and refugees born outside of Canada, regardless of the length of stay in Canada (immigration status), are eligible.
- Children under 18 years of age of parents born outside of Canada are also eligible.

Locations:

- Downtown at 10170 – 112 Street NW
- Gupta Newcomer Resource Centre – 11713 – 82 Street NW
- Online services are available as well.
